Financing, Fundraising and Grants

BWPFD revenues for the Regional Center come primarily from state sales tax rebates, estimated at $17 million over 25 years. Plans for the Regional Center identify a funding gap of $8 to $10 million. Revenues from local, state and federal grants and donations are being pursued. The combined efforts of a local fundraising group and other Regional Center stakeholders are underway. Private fundraisers have taken the Regional Center concept to a more inclusive Art and Cultural District concept and funded architectural services to illustrate and communicate the concept.
