

Bellingham Public Works
We work for clean water!

I'm Simon the street sweeper!
I sweep up litter and dirt from the roads. This helps keep our streets looking clean, but it also helps keep litter, dirt, and oil from going into our streams, lakes and oceans. Rain water that falls on streets goes down storm drains and ditches directly to the nearest body of water without being cleaned or treated. My job is important because I sweep up pollution before it goes into the storm drain and into our waterways.

May 16- 22, 2021 is National Public Works Week. The City of Bellingham Public Works department provides essential city services such as clean drinking water, wastewater treatment, stormwater management, protection of natural resources, and safe streets and sidewalks for transportation. Show your appreciation for all the stormwater and construction project management the City of Bellingham Public Works Department does by sharing your artwork on social media and tagging your post with #NPWW during National Public Works Week.
